ABOUT THE PROGRAM

Every year, the United Nations posts numerous job opportunities for its various agencies in all countries and continents but very few Indians get a chance to secure a seat at the United Nations. This is because of lack of awareness and guidance available in India. There are no organizations or institutes that connect the youth with the UN. Even individuals who aspire to work with the UN fail to qualify for the job openings due to lack of knowledge and guidance on how to build a UN friendly CV or how to write efficient offer letters, etc. Helping Hand International is the first Indian organization who has taken the initiative to connect the youth with the UN by hosting the various editions of India's First UN Mentorship Program. UN insiders are invited to give lectures on how to get qualified for the opportunities provided by the UN. Topics like skill development, personality development, and other trainings on how to appear for interviews, and how to apply for job openings are given so that the participants get an in-depth knowledge of what it's like to work for the UN and how to kick-start their journey as an international diplomat. The other editions have received a lot of positive feedbacks, applause and recommendations, yet a lot of people aspiring to join the UN are clueless about its workings. To amplify this project, and to engage more youth in international projects and work, we have come up with the UN Mentorship Campus ambassador program. The ambassadors get an international exposure by working very closely with UN insiders and international diplomats.
